HAVE TO PAY IT.
It appears that the violation of his pledge by Governor Kinkaid in relation to the bullion tax business, is not going to inure to the benefit of the Bonanza firm after all. The Supreme Court has decided the so-called "Penalty bill," passed by the last Legislature, to be unconstitutional. The decision is by Beatty, the others concurring. The effect of this is to compel the bonanza mines to pay to the State and Storey county over $100,000, being the 25 per cent. penalty due for failure to pay the tax at the proper time, and to vitiate the agreement entered into at the time the State and the mining companies compromised the matter. Mackay & Co. spent a big sack full of money to elect Kinkaid governor, and it begins to look as though they weren't going to get any of it back. They should introduce a relief bill in the next Legislature for the reimbursement of the coin expended at the last election.—[Tuscarora Times-Review.]
The Times-Review does Gov. Kinkaid a great injustice. He made no pledge on the penalty question. He did pledge himself to maintain the bullion tax law, and that pledge has been kept. With the exception of the plank in the Washoe county Republican platform there was no pledge made or given by any Republican or Democrat in the State on the question of remitting the penalties.
The latest about the Stewart body is that it was stolen by one Jacob Myers, who several years ago worked for the millionaire and who after being badly treated, was discharged. Burning with hatred, he sought for revenge. No opportunity occurred while Stewart lived and so he stole the dead body, hid it in his cellar, where dogs eat it up. The confession was made on Myers' death bed. Judge Hilton admits the employment and discharge of Myers, but will not credit the alleged confession.
The latest election returns from Oregon indicate that M. C. George (Rep.) is elected to Congress by a majority ranging from 1,000 to 1,500. The majorities are difficult to obtain, but it is safe to estimate the average at 1,000. The complexion of the Legislature can not be stated; although there is a strong indication that the Republicans will have a majority in both branches.
Jacob S. Taber, in an address before the New York Board of Trade, said the merchants of the Pacific Coast were chafing under a railroad monopoly and would heartily co-operate in any effort toward reform. Their hope lay in the construction of a canal across Nicaragua, which is considered preferable to the Panama route.
A Texas correspondent says many of the settlers in the extreme western part of the State sleep on their cabin floors at night, and recently no less than five persons in one county were bitten by skunks, all on the face and one victim, a woman, died with all the symptoms of hydrophobia. A remedy for these attacks—shut your cabin door.
Both branches of the New York Legislature have passed the bill enabling the New York "World's Fair" commission to acquire land for exhibition purposes, and gives the commission all the power required to carry out the great programme.
The charitable appeal for the orphan children of General J. B. Hood, of New Orleans, has been generously responded to by the people of the Southern States. Up to June 1st, the contributions amounted to $1,864 75.
The season at Newport has fairly opened, and many cottage owners are already there—especially from Philadelphia and Baltimore. Wealthy nabobs know where to find a cool and pleasant retreat in summer.
The New York Spirit of the Times says the project for a series of races between Maud S. and Santa Claus has at last fallen through. The famous trotter is dead.
Seymour is too old to be at the head of a great and growing Government like ours. Garfield is just about the right age, and possesses the necessary vim.
The Greenbackers nominated Gen. James B. Weaver, of Iowa, for President, and B. J. Chambers, of Texas, for Vice President.

CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT EMIGRATION.
The "Statistical Abstract," just issued from the Government printing office, at Washington, states that the number of immigrants arriving in the United States during the nine years from 1871 to 1879, inclusive, was 2,354,934. This is an average of over a quarter of a million a year, while the aggregate is nearly equal to the entire population of the United States at the close of the Revolutionary War. The returns are conveniently arranged for an analysis of some of the most interesting curiosities of this emigration movement. We find that this emigration from Germany was largest in the three years immediately following the Franco German war (1871-73) when the annual arrivals were respectively 82,554, 141,109 and 149,671. From that point it began to decline, probably owing to the business depression in this country, until in 1877 it had dropped to 29,298; then in 1879 it rose to 31,602. This year the flood is again at its height, and bids fair to equal that of 1873. The cause is not a difficult one to seek. There is a settled purpose on the part of the people to escape the burdens of imperialism, the severest of which is the conscription law, which takes several years out of the life of every able bodied young peasant for military service. The Bismarckian policy is a severe one, and the imminent prospect of war constantly held up before the people makes them anxious to get away and become citizens of a nation whose policy is peace, and which holds no man or class of men down to a permanent condition of serfdom or peasantry. Hence America is filling up so rapidly with this most excellent people as to relieve all further apprehensions of a preponderance of the "dangerous classes" among our foreign born population.
Another interesting fact is the extent of English emigration. During the nine years embraced in the statement, the number of English people arriving in this country was 378,252, while in the same time there came from Ireland 365,269, and from Scotland 74,924. Thus Great Britain has lost 800,000 of her people in nine years, besides 200,000 who have settled in Canada. Political causes largely account for this, for Beaconsfield's policy during six years of the nine was as offensive as to the common people as that of Bismarck in Germany. We know what excellent citizens the English and Scotch people make, devoting themselves to agriculture in the thorough manner to which they have been trained, and of the Irish emigrants it is said that they are largely of a better class than ever appeared in America before, and their good sense is shown in migrating directly to the West, instead of seeking menial employment in the large cities. Of other nationalities there came to this country during the nine years 177,559 Scandinavians, 67,888 French, and 33,933 Russians.—The Scandinavians and French make such excellent citizens that we would like to see more of them, while the Russians, principally Mennonites, are the vanguard of a great movement which bids fair in a few years to equal that from Germany. They are an earnest, religious people of the Presbyterian faith, and come well equipped for possessing themselves of farms, and entering upon their cultivation. Of the emigrants of other nationalities it is said that they are well supplied with means except the Irish, who have been made poor by the famine. But even these people, or a large proportion of them, find friends here who look after their welfare and do something to give them a "start in life." Altogether the aggregated wealth brought by these people is more than sufficient to provide for all, so that the country loses nothing in the first instance, while it derives a permanent benefit from the acquisition of an industrious, peaceful and constantly improving population.
A recent visitor to Palestine furnishes a melancholy picture of the desolation that has settled down upon that historic land. Treeless it is, he says, for twenty or thirty miles together. Forests which existed thirty years ago or Mount Tabor and Mount Carmel are fast disappearing. Rich plains of fine garden soil are at best only scratched up in patches, and have no hedges or boundaries. The villages are nothing but mud huts, dust and equal. Large tracts are without a house, or cow, or sheep, or a dog.—Except from Jaffa to Jerusalem there is no pretence at roads. Everything is taxed, even trees, and in consequence no trees are planted; every cow and every horse, every vegetable sold out of the garden; while every eighth egg is not taxed but taken outright by the government. This year double taxes are expected, since after three years of bad harvests an abundant one is in prospect.

The Union Consolidated mine shipped nine bars of bullion valued at $31,967, on Saturday evening last.
The sworn statement of the superintendent of the Hale & Norcross mine contained the following: "The south drift on the 2100 level measures ten feet in ore giving an average assay of $29 06 per ton."
MORE INTERVIEWING.
What Governor Kinkaid and H. D. Foley told a Chicago Tribune Reporter.
Governor Kinkaid of Nevada arrived Tuesday afternoon and is at the Sherman. Although not a delegate, a reporter asked him how the delegation stood, as far as he knows.
"Six for Blaine," was his reply.
"Who is their second choice?"
"I don't think they have any. They would vote for any good Republican. Either Edmunds or Washburne would be acceptable to them."
"How do they feel as to the unit rule?"
"They don't know much about it; but I don't believe they will vote to sustain it."
"Are they familiar with the Illinois case?"
"Yes."
"What do they think of it?"
"They don't take much stock in the convention. The districts have a right to elect their own delegates."
M. D. Foley, a delegate from Nevada, said that he and five others were instructed to vote for Blaine, who was their choice, anyhow, and whom they would support as long as his name was before the convention. Nevada was clearly Republican, said he, and would give the nominee a majority, whoever he was, but Blaine was their first choice and if they could not get him, they would favor Edmunds. In Oregon, however, the case would be different. It was a close State at best, but would go Republican if Blaine was nominated, or if the choice of the convention should result in the nomination of Washburne or Edmunds. If Grant was nominated, however, he did not think, from all he had heard, that he could carry the State.
Did you ever stop to consider the immense power possessed by a bumblebee? An insect weighing no more than an eighth of an ounce is capable of raising a man weighing 220 pounds from a bench in the public park, and they have lots of lifting material left. Just stop and think of it. The stinger of a bee is not near as large as the finest needle, but such is the force behind it that it can be driven through heavy pants cloth and into the flesh about sixteen feet. If a man would wield a crowbar, in comparison, he could drive it through seven saw mills and a whisky distillery at one blow. Nature could not give the bee teeth and claws without spoiling his beauty, and in compensation she gave him this stinger as a weapon of attack and defence. If the bee had no weapon, ants, beetles and bugs could cuff him around as they pleased, but as it is, he is boss of the walk, and does not take a word from any of them.

A Duel With Planes.
An extraordinary duel took place at Valparaiso not long ago, in which the weapons used proved to be terrible instruments of torture. Two rival professors of music had a quarrel, and one challenged the other. The challenged had the right of choice of weapons, and he chose the piano. The conditions of the duel were that neither of the duellists should eat or drink until "honour" was satisfied, and that no waiters nor lively airs should be played. Seconds were appointed, and for forty-eight hours dead marches and "miserere" were played without ceasing, until finally one of the musicians fell to the floor dead, after having played the same "miserere" one hundred and fifty times. The other musician became insane, and the two seconds were ill for some time. This story is vouched for by a truthful narrator.
Alabama is as large as England, and yet has only 100,000 of people to England's 21,000,000. California, with less than 1,000,000 of people, is very little smaller than France, with 36,000,000. Nevada is a little smaller, and Oregon is larger than New York and Pennsylvania combined; so either of these new States could easily hold two older States combined population of 8,500,000. We do not think Massachusetts overcrowded with 1,500,000, nor Ohio with less than 3,000,000, nor New York with 4,500,000. And yet if Texas were settled as thickly as New York its 1,000,000 of people would grow to 22,000,000; if like Ohio, it would have 21,000,000; if like Massachusetts, it would hold 52,000,000, or more than the present population of the Union. There are only fifteen States out of the thirty-eight which have each more than 1,000,000 of people, while there are fourteen States which have each a larger area than England with 21,000,000.—Settled like England, these States would have more than 300,000,000. The States towards which emigration is now mainly settling are Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Texas and Colorado. These about equal Missouri in population, while the area is ten times hers. So, to be even populated like Missouri, sparsely peopled as that State is, these five should have 50,000,000; and to be settled like Massachusetts, being ninety times as large they must have 130,000,000, or three times our country's present population. If the whole territory of the Union were settled like New York it would contain 250,000,000, if like Massachusetts 560,000,000, and, if it reached England's ratio of inhabitants to the square mile, its population would almost equal the present population of the globe.

Spoiled Postal Cards.

Under the postal laws, if you spoil a stamped wrapper or envelope you can have it redeemed at its face value at the Post Office. When postal cards were introduced postmasters were instructed to redeem such as were spoiled before using, at the rate of four cents in stamps for every five cents in face value of the cards. Many postal cards are spoiled in printing, others in direction, while many printed cards are simply unused. These can be exchanged at the rate mentioned. A stranger appeared at the Louisville Post Office last week, with one or two thousand of these postal cards per day, for several days in succession. The cards were redeemed, but there were so many the stamp clerk inquired, to satisfy his curiosity, where he got them. He said he was buying them up at various business houses, paying 40 and 50 cents per hundred for the useless cards.

Change of Time.

Within two or three weeks the Virginia & Truckee Railroad Company will issue a new time table, and the Carson Times says some important changes will be made in the arrival and departure of local passenger trains. The through express will leave and arrive at the same time as it now does. The early local for Reno will leave Carson at 5:30 A. M., arriving in Reno 7:50 A. M. Returning as train No. 3 it will leave Reno at 8:15 A. M. and arrive in Carson at 10:45 A. M. The train men will then have a rest of an hour and a quarter, and will leave Carson as No. 6 at 12 M., and arrive in Reno at 2:20 P. M., stopping until 3:15 P. M., when as train No. 7 it will leave and arrive in Carson at 5:45 P. M. These are the only local passenger trains which will be run between Carson and Reno.

A Terrible Tornado in Iowa.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, June 11.—Special dispatches give the particulars of a terrible tornado that swept through the southern part of Pottawamie county on Wednesday evening. The track of the storm was about half a mile wide and swept everything before it, demolishing farm houses, barns and other buildings, and carrying some of them bodily for hundreds of feet and then dashing them to the ground and to pieces. In one place a farm house, surrounded by a frail fence, was picked up and then dashed to pieces in the yard, leaving every board of the fence remaining in its place.

There were from fifteen to twenty persons killed outright, and many wounded while others cannot be found. Alex. Oster, his wife and child were carried in the air almost a hundred feet and seriously injured, the child fatally. A hired man employed by Oster, name unknown, was killed. Other persons were carried away and had not been found at last accounts. The scene after the storm had spent its force is described as heart-rending in the extreme. Not a house in the track of the tornado was left standing, and the boards were ground to tinder. The storm did not last fifteen minutes, and was not accompanied by rain. Doctors from this city, Red Oak and other points have gone to assist in taking care of the injured and to bury the dead. There are no railroad or telegraphic facilities to the scene of the disaster and the reports are meagre as yet. It is thought that the storm struck other points, but not with so great force as Wheeler's Grove.

IOWA CITY, June 11.—A heavy hail-storm yesterday broke a vast amount of glass, and subsequently stores and residences were flooded by the rain, causing damages to the amount of $10,000. Hail stones eleven inches in circumference were picked up.
